

Scott Patrick Schiabor

Scott Patrick Schiabor is a highly successful builder and the principal of Scott Patrick Family of Companies. Since the late 1980's, Scott's focus has been on designing and building new home communities that capture the unique beauty of the Southwest, with emphasis on building in harmony with the environment. In the early 1990's, Scott began developing residential neighborhoods in Albuquerque's Northeast. Referred to as the "house whisperer," Scott is a master at land acquisition, creative design and the development of unprecedented luxury properties. Scott Patrick Family of Companies is renowned for the quality of its custom land planning, designed to take full advantage of the views, terrain and community feel of each subdivision. Scott is also co-owner of Paradiso Development Corporation of Phoenix, Arizona, developing outstanding luxury properties in the Phoenix/Paradise Valley area.

Possessing the unusual combination of analytical acumen, environmental commitment and creative ability, Scott works closely with engineering companies with the goal of developing quality, environmentally-friendly new home communities that seamlessly blend into the surrounding landscape. With a keen interest and respect for the native flora and fauna, Scott's desire is always to achieve a balance with nature while designing builder sites and custom homes that showcase the beauty of the area with an abundance of view corridors. With a deep concern for the environment, Scott is careful to preserve the integrity of the land wherever he builds.

Scott was honored as the "Featured Home Builder" by the Home Builder Association of Central New Mexico in 1991, 2002 and 2006. He was awarded numerous Gold, Silver, and Bronze Awards in the Annual "Parade of Homes."

Fundamental to his business philosophy is his commitment to a team approach among his employees. Scott is a multi-faceted individual. He has a Bachelor of Science degree in accounting and information systems and is a CPA.